

Accessibility Ratings

The following resources help take the guesswork out of traveling or going out on the town for people with disabilities. They help one find the accessibility ratings of various hotels, restaurants, movie theaters, public venues, transportation options, etc. A few help you find accessible venues but don't rate them.

AXS Map

<http://www.axsmap.com/>

People can enter ratings on the accessibility of various public places such as hotels, restaurants, etc. An app or the website can be used to find or enter ratings.

Blue Trunk Foundation

www.bluetrunk.org

Blue Trunk Foundation is dedicated to one goal: accessible travel for everyone. They want all people to be able to explore the world, regardless of age, disability, or health condition. The resources on their website help travelers find places featuring whatever accessibility options they choose. While they have initially launched in only two cities (Charlottesville, VA, and Madison, WI), their ultimate goal is a worldwide database of accessible tourist spots. They also provide resources for business seeking to improve accessibility, and firsthand accounts of traveling with a disability or health condition.
