

Support Groups/Self-Help Groups/Peer Mentoring

Support groups differ from self-help groups in that they are led by professional therapists rather than group members. (Definition from Inside MS April-June 2004 p. 53.) Please note that not everyone recognizes this distinction and you should inquire as to the credentials of the person leading the group if you need professional help. You may encounter other terms for these groups also such as peer mentoring, peer coaching, peer support, etc.

The Reeve Foundation has a Peer and Family Support Program in which Peer Mentors are certified by the Reeve Foundation. If you are interested in being mentored by a

Reeve Foundation Peer Mentor, please go to the Reeve website:
